If you are concerned about your pet having intestinal parasites (worms), there are several different types of parasites that can harbor in the Digestive System.

The three most common intestinal parasites are hookworms, round worms and tape worms. In order to correctly treat your pet we need to know if, and which, parasite your pet has.

Examinations

We recommend that every new pet in your home have a fecal exam.

Fecal Exam: $18.00

De-worming: $10.00 - $40.00

The cost is dependent on the size of your pet and the type of worm your pet has.

Blood Work:

We recommend a pre-anesthetic blood work for all pets over 5 years old, so that we may establish a database of your pets normal values. If there is any question about your pet's health status or age we will defer the surgery and request blood work first.

If your pet is considered to be geriatric a pre-op blood panel will be required to determine the appropriate anesthetic for your pet.

Pre-op panel: $35.00
